JACKSON CITY ITEMS

Local Happenings About Amador's County Seat

Miss Lena Podesta, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Al Mattley of this city for the past month, returned to her place of employment in San Francisco last Tuesday.

Reserved seats for the local show entitled "Honor of a Cowboy," will be on sale at Spagnoli's drug store on and after Wednesday next.

V. W. Norton of Sutter Creek has been elected district deputy of I. O. O. F. in this county, by the grand lodge which recently convened in San Francisco.

J. F. Wilson, Dentist. Hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Phone—Office, Main 75; residence, black 394; Jackson.

Mrs. D. S. Mason and children left Wednesday for Lone on a visit to relatives and friends.

Miss Luella Roberts is over from the Fremont mine, visiting friends, and the guest of Miss Hazel Quirolo.

Give your former Jackson friend a year's subscription to the Ledger. It will make a fine Christmas present.

Little Girl Improving

Mrs. G. M. Huberty is in San Francisco with her daughter Veryl. The latter has been suffering from an attack of infantile paralysis, and the trip to the city was for the purpose of further treatment at the hands of specialists who have charge of the case. The child is slowly improving, and hopes are held out of her complete recovery.

New Manager Arrives.

J. A. Allison, who installed the new pool and billiard parlor in this city, and later went to Napa to take charge of another similar business, returned on Tuesday evening with his wife, and will manage the local business.

D. Jenkins, who has had charge of the business here and who is a partner with Allison, left this city on Thursday morning for Napa to take charge of the parlors in that city. The exchange of management will only be a temporary one, as Mr. Jenkins expects to return to Jackson later on.

Visits Sick Brother

Mrs. J. Quirolo left for San Francisco this week, called there by the illness of her brother, Fred Briggs, who was seized with a stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago. He was a linotype operator on the Enquirer of Oakland, and has worked in that capacity on that paper for more than twenty years. At last reports he was considerably improved. He was a part owner in the Amador Ledger thirty-five years ago.

Taxes Due Monday

Next Monday is the last day for the payment of the first instalment of state and county taxes, which become delinquent after 6 o'clock of that day. Fifteen per cent will be added to the amount if allowed to go delinquent.

It is creditable to Jackson, and indicates a healthy condition financially among the property holders, that not a solitary piece of property went delinquent on account of municipal taxes this year. Every property holder settled with the city collector on time.

Visits Old Home

J. Noce, an old time resident of Amador county, but now of Colorado, is here on a visit to his sister, Mrs. P. Ferrari of near Butte mountain, and other relatives in this section. Mr. Noce is a printer, and worked on the Ledger in the days when this paper was owned by Thomas Springer, forty years ago. Of course he sees a wonderful change in Jackson since he left, he would scarcely recognize it as the same place. Mr. Noce is still employed in the printing business, being at present a proof reader in one of the large job offices in Denver. He expects to return there in the course of a week or so.

TRAGEDY IN PINE GROVE

Two Citizens Dangerously Wounded—Assailant Killed

The village of Pine Grove was the scene of a tragedy last Saturday afternoon that has not been known in that burg since early days. The chief actor in the affray was an unknown tramp. Where he came from, and wither bound no one seems to know. He was seen in Jackson the previous night, and appeared rational enough. It is said he appeared at one of the stores, and bought a supply of cartridges for his pistol, and was met the following morning, Saturday, between Jackson and Pine Grove. On his way to the Grove however, his actions aroused suspicion that he was off mentally. About 1:30 Saturday he entered O. L. Webster's saloon in the Grove. There were three men in the barroom at the time—Clarence Berry, bartender, S. Henson and J. B. Detrick. The stranger uttered not a word. He walked toward the bar, and Berry, thinking he was about to call for something, stepped behind the bar prepared to serve him. After reaching half across the room, he turned and retraced his steps to the main door. He glanced both ways on the road, apparently to see if any one was near. Then turning toward the bar, he whipped out his pistol and started shooting, first at Berry behind the bar. After shooting once at Berry without effect, he turned on the others, firing twice at Detrick, one bullet ploughing a flesh wound in the hip, and the other striking him in back, penetrating the cavity, and producing a dangerous wound. He next shot at Henson, the bullet passing through portion of his clothing, but leaving him untouched. He felt the motion of the air as the ball whistled close to his head.

While this was in progress the unwounded men were trying to escape from the maniac—for such his actions proved him to be—and finally went out of the rear door, and ran in the direction of James Lowry's saloon, the crazy man following them.

Lowry, who is 82 years of age, was outside his place of business, piling up wood. The shooter on seeing Lowry uttered a sentence, "Here's another —" —the only words uttered by him during the affair. His pistol was evidently exhausted by this time, so he drew an old butcher knife, and with this stabbed Lowry three times in the breast. The knife was blunt, and inflicted only flesh wounds. He then seized a stick of wood from the pile Lowry was engaged in stacking, and struck him over the head, beating him into insensibility. With this his craving for blood seemed appeased, and he started across a vacant lot making his way to the main road by which he had entered the village, scaling a high gate in order to get into the highway. He was walking down the road toward Jackson, and has reached perhaps a hundred yards from Webster's saloon. By this time Berry had secured a rifle and shot at the retreating man. The ball struck him in the back, and he instantly fell in the road. He was in the act of turning, when Berry fired again, the ball striking him in the head, near the eye, killing him instantly. He fell face downward in the roadway, clutching his revolver. Upon examination it was found that the revolver of the stranger contained four unused cartridges. He had evidently reloaded the weapon after leaving Webster's saloon.

The pistol was a new 32 caliber revolver. An old knife, also four papers—"Appeal to Reason"—a socialist paper published in Kansas, also a Los Angeles paper containing one of Stitts Wilson's campaign speeches when making his canvass for governor, together with about 30 clippings from the San Francisco Examiner, in which Johnson was criticised; all papers were issued either in October or November of this year.

Lowry was carried from the road tenderly by his friends into his home, and Berry called up sheriff Gregory by phone telling him of the killing. The sheriff inquired, "Where is the man you killed?" Berry replied, "He is lying out here in the road."

Sheriff Gregory and district attorney Vicini hastened to the scene of the shooting. After learning the details, they decided not to make any arrest, deeming that the shooting of the stranger was justifiable under the circumstances.

Dr. Endicott was summoned to render professional services to the injured men. Lowry was found in a critical condition; his skull was fractured, and he remained unconscious until Monday, when he seemed to recover his faculties. Detrick was also in a bad way. The bullet had lodged in the lower part of his body. It was thought at first that the chances of recovery were against both the wounded men, but it is now thought they may pull through.

Coroner Potter held an inquest over the remains of the stranger on Sunday morning, and the jury, after hearing the testimony, exonerated Berry from all blame, holding that the killing was warranted.

Hugh Luttrell took a kodak photo of the dead man before he was buried, the burial being held at Pine Grove Sunday afternoon.

The man has not been identified. One man thought he worked on the ditch for the Standard Electric Company several years ago. He was a middle aged man probably between 40 and 50 years old, of medium height, and of sandy complexion. Detrick was removed to the county hospital Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of performing an operation to locate and remove the bullet.

Several parties at the Grove recognized the slain man as Will Haves, who worked for a time on the ditch of the Standard Electric company in that neighborhood last spring. The rope around his blankets, also the butcher knife were recognized as having been in the possession of Haves. At first, when he lay in the roadway, his features were recognized, but afterwards when washed those who had known Haves were not so positive as regards identification. Haves, when working in that vicinity, was considered peculiar. He was reserved, did not engage in conversation, did not drink, and was not in the least quarrelsome. He usually went to the saloon in the evening after work, would take a paper, and sit down in a corner by himself if possible and read. He was not addicted to gambling. No one can think of anything having occurred during his short stay in the Grove that would cause him to have a grudge against the town or any of those whom he so savagely attacked.

Nuptial Bells

Ring at Berkeley.

Nuptial bells rang merrily last Sunday noon, when Archie S. Moore and his fiancée, Miss Edith D. Baker, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr and Mrs Christopher Baker, were united in marriage at the home of the bride, 1809 Ninth street, West Berkeley.

The wedding march was played by a string orchestra, the bride and groom filed into the parlor, which was elaborately decorated in garlands of roses. During the ceremony, Mendelshon's Spring song was rendered in an undertone, creating a most enchanting effect upon all present.

A sumptuous feast was spread after the ceremony. The wedding cake was a marvel of beauty.

Moore is musical director of Jackson's Military band, and the wedding is the culmination of a fascinating love romance started several years ago in Missouri.

Mr and Mrs Moore returned to Jackson on Wednesday evening. A cozy little home had been all prepared by the groom at No. 30 Stael Ave., where they expect to be permanently located.

MURDER IN DRYTOWN

Fracas Proves Fatal to Young Man—Three Arrests Made

A dance given at the home of Michael Cavallero, who conducts a boarding house in Drytown, Saturday night last, ended in a fracas which proved fatal to Stephen Fistore, aged 25 years.

The crowd assembled early in the evening, and many of the party over indulged in wine. Three of the crowd were Italians who but recently arrived in this county from Italy. The names given by the trio are, Stefano Sampo, George Sampo a brother, and Stefano Conti. These three young men, it is reported, started the disturbance by passing insulting remarks about Fistore and his lady friend Mrs Cavallero remonstrated at their conduct, and one of the three picked up a chair and struck at the proprietor's wife. In so doing he smashed the electric light globe, leaving the room in utter darkness.

Fistore made his way from the place, and was hurrying down the street when he was overtaken by the trio, who, it is claimed, seized him, and while two men held the victim, the third beat his skull with a rock, badly fracturing it.

After they had beaten the man insensible, they took him back to Cavallero's place of business, and put him in bed.

The victim was employed at a nearby mine, and was on the morning shift. Early on Sunday morning Mrs Cavallero knocked at Fistore's bedroom to call him to prepare for work. He failed to respond to her callings, and when she examined him, she found life extinct, he having expired some time during the night.

Deputy constable Dan Bona, was immediately notified, and hurrying to the place found the victim's body still warm, indicating that the man had been dead but a short time.

The official, after learning the identity of the assailants, engaged a team and drove over to New Chicago, where he found his men in a saloon. He immediately placed them under arrest, and drove to Jackson, where they were lodged in jail. The prisoners were not aware of the predicament in which they had placed themselves by their brawl, as it never occurred to them that they were to face a murder charge. What they really did think was, that their victim had preferred a charge of battery against them, and that a small fine would settle the matter and grant them their freedom.

So without a murmur, they submitted to arrest, and were brought to the county seat, a distance of about seven miles, without handcuffs or shackles, the three prisoners riding in the rear seat of the surrey, while the constable and driver rode in the front seat.

After they were lodged safely in jail, they were acquainted with the real facts of the case, which brought forth a sullen disposition, instead of the indifferent expression carried up to this time.

Coroner Potter summoned a jury on Monday afternoon, and held an inquest over the remains. The jury reported that death was due to injuries supposed to have been inflicted upon the deceased the previous night in a quarrel with John Sampo and Stefano Conti, and holds both men responsible for the death of Fistore.

The law firm of Spagnoli & Spagnoli are attorneys for the defendants. The preliminary hearing has been set for this afternoon, and will be heard before justice Blower in Plymouth.

Dr. C. C. Golding, veterinary surgeon, who left Jackson last September for San Francisco, returned to this city last Sunday for about a 10 days' vacation.

Golding is taking a special course in the hospital of the San Francisco veterinary college, 1818 Market street, San Francisco, principally studying the uses of new serums for infectious diseases. He intends returning to the city and complete his course of study this year, and expects to return to Jackson some time next March, when he will open up a permanent office and locate here.

MINE NEWS ALONG LODGE

Interesting Accounts of Mines Located In Amador Co.

Hardenburg

Things are moving apace around this mine. Supplies are being rushed to the ground with all possible speed. Every day a big team goes through loaded with supplies. Every effort is being put forth to have all necessary material on hand before the heavy rain sets in, so that the work can proceed right along. The road to the shaft has been completed, and the work of sinking is being prosecuted. At the close of last week the new shaft had reached a depth of ten feet, working three shifts eight hours a day. There are two, y-five men employed. To sink a large working shaft to the depth of fifteen hundred feet is expected to take from fifteen to eighteen months to complete. The company, it is said, will sink that deep before doing any prospect work.

Argonaut

A new building has been erected at the Argonaut mine, which will house a merry-go-round, or buddle, as soon as the necessary supplies for the machinery can be obtained. The new buddle is a set of revolving wheels upon which the fine slime is run, and the sulphurets collected. It works automatically, flushing itself. The present slime plant is manipulated by a crew of men, and this is an expense which will be done away with when the merry-go-round begins operation. Nearly all the larger mines have the buddle in operation, and it has given satisfaction at the Zeila, Bunker Hill and Fremont. The Argonaut output of ore holds its value in most encouraging manner. The mine is a big factor in the city's welfare, as its monthly pay roll means considerable to the merchants.

Kennedy

The large drum which carries the wire cable, used in hoisting and lowering the skip at the Kennedy mine, broke on Saturday about noon, and put the shaft practically out of operation for several days. Several shifts of men have gone to work, however, using the north shaft as means of egress and exit. They are lowered in this shaft to the 2400 level and then travel through a drift over into the workings of the new mine. From this level they are compelled to travel down the stopes several hundred feet by ladders, to the stations in which they are detailed.

The mill lost no time, as a five days' supply of ore is always carried on hand, and this was sufficient to tide the operations of the mill over the shaft tie up.

Lincoln Consolidated

A slight setback was encountered at this Sutter Creek property last week. The electric motor broke down, practically bringing the operations in the shaft to a standstill. It took over a week to get the machinery in running order again. Otherwise things are moving along quite satisfactorily.

Looking for Location

J. S. Davis has been in Jackson several times since the election looking for a suitable place of residence. The sheriff elect has been offered several places and will no doubt be able to secure a site embodying all the essential features of nearness to courthouse, barn accommodations, and other desirable points. He expects to move to Jackson before January.

Broadway Home Quarantined

The young child of Mr and Mrs Lester Flagg, who reside at Electra, was stricken with diphtheria while on a visit to her grandmother, Mrs Deletis who resides on Broadway, at the north entrance of the bridge, this city. County health officer, Dr. E. E. Endicott, ordered the quarantine flag up. It was tacked up on Monday morning.

Mrs L. Lamb arrived in this city from Martinez last Tuesday, on a visit to her daughter, Mrs M. Silva, and will remain for several weeks.

AMENDING OUR CRIMINAL LAWS.

It is notorious that the system of criminal procedure in this country is the most cumbersome, expensive, and at the same time ineffective, among civilized nations. The case of Dr Crippen in London has brought into strong relief the defects of our methods of dealing with criminals. Here was a man tried, convicted and executed for a capital crime in the short space of two or three months—less time than it frequently takes to get a notable murder case fairly before a jury in this country. Outside of the United States the machinery of law for the punishment of crime moves swiftly onward to its goal—the punishment or acquittal of the accused. It makes little difference whether the defendant be possessed of wealth to fee high-priced lawyers or not—the progress of the case through the courts is little affected thereby. With all our vaunted claims to material progress, it must be admitted that in dealing with crime and criminals we might pattern with advantage after the ways of the older countries in many respects.

In view of our admittedly defective system, the state legislature that will assemble in Sacramento next January is pledged to reform. One of the vital changes proposed is to allow the trial judge to instruct the jury as to the facts as developed by the testimony as well as the law bearing upon the case. This has long been the practice in European countries. It has been found to work so satisfactorily that no idea of change would be favored. The summing up of the judge is usually the crucial point of the trial; the evidence is sifted by a trained and impartial mind, and the jury is told what to believe and what to discard. The charge amounts to a recommendation on the part of the judge whether a verdict of guilt or innocence should be returned. It is rare indeed that a verdict is found contrary to the judge's recommendation, and still rarer that a failure to reach a verdict occurs, which is so often the outcome of criminal trials in this country. How it came to pass that in our courts the trial judge in his instructions to the jury became limited to questions of law only, and any expression of his views concerning the facts would be deemed prejudicial error, and sufficient ground for a new trial, we do not know. Experience has demonstrated that this departure has not been conducive to the suppression of crime or the punishment of wrong-doers.

But another reform proposed is permitting three-fourths of the jury to bring in a verdict in criminal as well as civil cases. Whether this is necessary, with the enlarged powers given to the judge in instructing the jury may be doubted. Anyway, there is reason to believe that some of the crying evils of our criminal trials will ere long be remedied, so that the main object to be attained in the prosecution of crime—the protection of society—will be kept more in the foreground than under the present system.

The complete returns of the vote on $18,000,000 bonding proposition for state highways have not been made public as yet. It is probable that the proposition has carried. If so, we are inclined to think the people have voted themselves a big white elephant. We have little faith in the state engaging in the construction and maintenance of roads. And to embark in this business by piling up a huge debt seems folly indeed. It is not probable that Amador county will share in the roadmaking under this bond issue. We will be lucky if counted outside of the field of operations of the model roads to be built by this fund, because the condition attached to the expenditure thereof is that each county is required to meet the annual interest payment on the bonds for such proportion of the money as is expended within the county. At an estimated cost of $10,000 per mile, the burden is not inviting to counties situated like Amador. But we shall have to pay our share of the fund for the redemption of the bonds. This will strike us in the shape of a special state tax levied annually for that purpose.

The democrats will have a majority of over sixty in the house of representatives in the next congress. Thanks to the insurgent brand of republicanism that works in the interest of the democratic party.

Rapid Photography—Our Growing Plant List—A New Mechanical Steed—Storage of Sun and Wind Power—A Life-Saver's Protector—Meteor Measurements—Heating in a Line—An Old-Time Mirror—Mexican Magic.

The ultra-rapid cinematograph of M. Bull, with which the Marey Institute of Paris has been making stereoscopic views of flying insects and breaking bubbles, takes pictures with exposures at the rate of 2,000 per second, the sensitive film being driven at the average speed of 130 feet per second. The usual stop of the film at each exposure is impossible at this speed, but a sharp image on the moving film is given by an electric spark not exceeding 1-400,000 of a second. The two long strips of film are wound on a reel or wheel 13½ inches in diameter enclosed in a light-proof case. The reel is driven by an electric motor, and 54 strips of copper around its axis make and break the primary circuit of an induction coil 54 times at each turn, each interruption causing the secondary of the coil to flash across a pair of spark-gaps arranged at a short distance in front. A series of quartz and Iceland spar lenses transmits the light rays to the aperture on ground-glass of the film case. Special devices are necessary to bring a flying insect within the field of view and in one form the insect moves a light mica door in escaping from a glass tube, thus making contact starting the shutter mechanism as flight is begun toward the nearest window. The pictures made being shown by the ordinary cinematograph at the rate of 15 or less per second, instead of 1,500 or 2,000, the rapid motions photographed are easily seen.

The number of plant species now known is estimated by Prof. Chas. Bessey at 210,000. He points out that about 18 years ago Saccardo found the number known to be 174,000, and concluded that it would reach 400,000—in cluding 250,000 fungi—in 150 years, by which time botanists might be expected to find all species in existence. Linnie, 150 years before Saccardo, knew 8,551 species.

The new Austrian chainless bicycle is claimed to save 50 per cent in power. The rider moves his feet up and down, instead of in a circle, thus working two long levers which alternately pull a chain passing to the rear over pulleys to two sprocket wheels, which in turn act upon a free wheel ratchet to drive the hub of the rear wheel.

The power-storage plan of Prof. R. A. Fessenden, first made known at the last meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, depends upon the use of intermittent cheap power for pumping water from tanks sunk 1,000 feet or so into the earth, and keeping the water in surface tanks until needed. The power thus stored would be made available at any time by causing the water to drive turbines on its way back to the lower level. The water could be pumped in the usual way by windmills, or by sun-engines, or, better, by both. Solar heat is to be utilized by means of a large tank containing a shallow layer of water and having a steam-tight covering of wired glass. It is stated that the heat can be made to boil the water, generating steam enough to run a low pressure turbine, and it is calculated that a "sun-tank" 650 feet square would develop more than 1,000 horse-power for 7 hours a day throughout the year. It seems evident, however, that such a result could be had only in a favorable climate. Comparing the expense of different sources of energy, Prof. Fessenden has estimated that power from water stored by the sun and wind pumps would be about one-fifth of that of steam, one-fourth of that of gas, six-fifths of that of Niagara Falls, and somewhat less than twice that of the cheapest water-powers.

The rescue apparatus evolved from experiments in British mines is claimed to make it practicable and easy for its wearer to work 5 or 6 hours in the most noxious gases. No helmet is used, but a headpiece holds the mouthpiece in place, a light clamp closes the nostrils, and the eyes are protected by goggles. A bag suspended from the shoulders in front carries the air supply. A pipe leads the air exhaled to a receptacle filled with chemicals to absorb the carbonic acid and replenish the oxygen, and from this the restored air passes again to the breathing bag. The weight is 23 pounds.

The height of a meteor observed in Asia on Aug. 11, 1909, has been accurately determined from knots and outbursts shown on photographs taken at three different stations. It first appeared, very faint, at about 70 miles, brightened suddenly at 60 miles, showed marked outbursts at 55 and 53 miles, suddenly grew fainter at 51½ miles, brightened at 50½ miles, and disappeared at 50 miles.

New possibilities in medicine have been discovered by Dr. Franz, Nagelschmidt in the heating effects of electric currents. In a demonstration before the London Royal Society of Medicine, he used an alternating current of as much as 2½ amperes at 800 volts—instead of the very small current at 100,000 volts tried by D'Arsonval a quarter of a century ago—and with this he showed heating and cooking action confined entirely to the narrow path of the current. With the two poles placed on opposite sides of a piece of liver, the current coagulated the portion corresponding to the diameter of the electrodes, all except that in the direct course traversed being unaffected. In a solution of white of egg in a glass trough, the hardening could be watched, and with a current of 0.5 amperes it was seen to commence midway between the electrodes and progress toward them. The practical value of this action is expected to be great. Diseased tissue—like cancer—can be destroyed without loss of blood, localized pains can be relieved promptly by moderate heating, and many other results can be achieved, including that of strengthening and accelerating the heart's action.

A Roman mirror found in an ancient burial ground in Austria, and believed to date from the 2d or 3d century A. D., is a slightly convex glass plate fitted into an indented leaden ring about a sixth of an inch in thickness and 3 inches in greatest diameter. From chemical and microscopical investigation, two German chemists have concluded that the mirror was made by attaching lead foil to the thin glass by some balsam that has changed to resin and combined with the lead to form a resinate. Much of the lead of the frame had been converted into red oxide or basic carbonate.

The plans for electrifying 700 miles of the western coast of Mexico include three large hydro-electric plants of a combined capacity of 300,000 horsepower and 1,200 miles of transmission line. Dams across the Mayo, Humaya and Santiago rivers will form storage reservoirs aggregating 30 billion gallons in capacity. The largest of the three dams—that across the Humaya—will be 223 feet high and 708 feet long.

BOOSTER'S CLUB IS DISBANDED

Money In Treasury Is Given to Ladies Improvement Club

A notice in last week's papers calling a mass meeting of citizens of this city to be held in the superior court room on Monday evening, drew a considerable attendance of ladies, but less than half a dozen men folks. Jas. Jay Wright called the meeting to order, and R. I. Kerr was elected chairman. After informing those present that the object of the gathering was to learn what means were advisable in disposing of the money in the treasury of the high school boosters' club. Mrs. Endicott said that the club had raised $186 through various agencies, and that there was a balance left in the treasury of $118.10. This sum she thought should be turned over to the ladies' improvement club for promoting a campaign to further the location of the county high school in Jackson.

After a short discussion, a vote was taken, and the money was turned over to the ladies' improvement club. A motion was then carried to disband the boosters' club.

A new meeting was then organized, with the same chairman. It was suggested by Rev. J. O. Duncan that a committee of seven be appointed to go among the citizens and enlist every man and woman in the high school cause by having them enroll as members of a permanent high school club, to be organized next Monday, at a meeting to be held in the court room for that purpose. Those appointed on this committee were, Fred Eudey, R. I. Kerr, Jas. Jay Wright, G. Brown, Chris Marelia, Wm. Penry Jr., and C. Giovannoni. After a short discussion of the duties of this committee, the meeting adjourned until next Monday.

What L-R's Mean

The Lincoln-Roosevelt organization was known in its abbreviated form as the L-R's. After Lissner and Rowell got in control the L-R's meant Lissner-Rowell. After they succeeded in electing Johnson, L-R's stood for Lucky-Rascals. Now that they are trying to make their followers believe that Works under the advisory vote, is entitled to the senatorship it means Lying-Reprobates. After these gentlemen have run the party for a year or two it will mean Late-Reformers.—Exchange.

New Postal Regulation.

The post office department has made a rule that letters bearing the name and address of the sender on the envelope shall be returned to the writer after five days, if the person addressed cannot be found. The only exception is in offices of the fourth class, in which letters will be held fifteen days.

Under the old ruling a letter had to be held thirty days.

The new ruling will prevent the accumulation of mail matter at post offices, and will also show the people the value of having a return note on the mail. The address of the sender on a card or envelope helps the postal department, and also insures prompt return in case of non-delivery. The writer's name and address should be on every letter. In five days the letter will be returned if not delivered or called for.

Saves an Iowa Man's Life.

The very grave seemed to yawn before Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Iowa, when, after seven weeks in the hospital, four of the best physicians gave me up. Then was shown the marvelous curative power of Electric Bitters. For, after eight months of frightful suffering from liver trouble and yellow jaundice, getting no help from other remedies or doctors, five bottles of this matchless medicine completely cured him. Its positively guaranteed for stomach, liver or kidney troubles and never disappoints. Only 50 cents at Spagnoli's drug store.

When Children Smoked.

Jorevin de Rochefort, who published in Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following: "While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mothers took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in the tobacco."

In England at the time of the great plague it was reported that no one living in a tobaccoist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tobacco. Hearne says in his diary, "I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a school-boy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of that school were obliged to smoke every morning and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoking."

In the Nick of Time.

The steamer was on the point of leaving, and the passengers lounged on the deck and waited for the start. At length one of them espied a cab in the far distance, and it soon became evident that the driver was doing his level best to catch the boat. Already the sailors' hands were on the gangways, and the cab's chances looked small indeed. Then a sportive passenger wagered a sovereign to a shilling that he would miss it. The offer was taken, and at once the deck became a scene of wild excitement. "He'll miss it!" "No; he'll just do it!" "Come on!" "He won't do it!" "Yes, he will. He's done it! Hurrah!"

In the very nick of time the cab arrived, its occupant sprang out and ran up the one gangway left. "Cast off!" he cried.

It was the captain.—Pearson's Weekly.

An East Indian Verdict.

In a case in one of our Indian courts a jury had before it evidence that could not be in any way shaken. When the concluding stage had been reached the following interchange of conversation took place between the judge and his colleagues in the administration of justice:

"Gentlemen, are you ready to give your verdict?"

"Yes."

"What is your verdict?"

"Our answer is, sir, that you can do as you like with the men that have confessed, but we acquit all the rest."

"But is it possible that you have weighed the evidence?"

"Evidence like this can always be fabricated."

"Do you find that as regards these prisoners it has been fabricated?"

"Evidence can be fabricated."

"So the evidence is untrustworthy?"

"Unless a man confesses who can tell he is guilty?"—Bainbridge Gazette.

The Fun of the Farce.

It is related that the manager of a theater consented to hear in his room a young man who had an unfortunate impediment in his speech read a short farce, the sole condition being that it should not occupy more time than it took to finish the cigar the manager had just lit. They both started, the one reading, the other smoking, but as the mild Havana gradually grew shorter the worse the young author spluttered. They finished together. Of course the question was immediately put, "What do you think of it?"

"Well," replied the manager, "it's not a half bad idea. Father, mother, lover, daughter, all spluttering, will be novel!"

The author, furious, exclaimed: "They don't splutter! It is only my misfortune."

"Oh, then, the play isn't funny at all! Sorry that I can't accept it," returned the manager.

Life.

It has been said that life is made up of three things—heredity, environment and the will. If the heredity and environment of the child are what they should be the will will choose the right and do it.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's cough remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving was observed in Jackson by all the public offices being closed and the stores suspended business in the afternoon. The only amusement furnished was a shooting for turkeys and geese in the rear of Green & Batto's stable.

The town has much to be thankful for this season, very little sickness being reported, and business has never been in better condition. Three large mines are operating full time, and several smaller mines are prospecting, with every indication of developing into good dividend paying companies.

BURRIS.—At his residence in Sacramento, at 11 o'clock Friday night, November 11, 1910 D. H. Burris, aged, 54 years, 6 months and 16 days.

Dock Harris Burris was born in Volcano, Amador county, April 27, 1856, and shortly after his family returned to Lone Valley, their former home, and here Mr Burris had resided, practically, all his life. He chose the occupation of a farmer for his life work, and as such he made a success, as the fine farm in Jackson Valley proves. He was married at Buena Vista, in early life, to Rosie Mullen, and five children, three girls and two boys, came to bless their union. Some time ago Mr Burris discovered there was something troubling his side, and he consulted physicians with only temporary relief, until in early summer it was decided that an operation was necessary, so he leased his farm and removed to Sacramento. Here a surgical examination revealed the fact that he had a tumorous growth on the spleen, and the surgeons decided that to remove it would cause instant death. The remains of Mr Burris were brought from Sacramento Sunday afternoon, accompanied by family and friends, and the interment took place in Lone cemetery, the beautiful burial services of the O. F., rendered by Lone lodge, No. 51, officiating.—Echo.

Why Hindoos Don't Go Mad.

Why are there so few lunatic asylums and so small a proportion of insane persons in India? That is a question which many a traveler has wonderingly asked. The Hindoos regulate their lives entirely in accordance with their religion—that is, their working, eating, sleeping, as well as what we usually regard as our "life" in the religious sense of the word. Everything is arranged for them, and they follow the rules now just as they did 2,000 years ago. This constant observance of the same rules for twenty centuries has molded the brains of the race into one shape, as it were, and, although their rites are queer enough, yet there is but an occasional example of that striking deviation from the common which is called insanity in countries inhabited by the white race. They are fatalists too. With them it is a case of "what is to be will be" carried to the extreme. This has in time given them the power to take all things calmly and to freed them from the anxiety that drives so many white men into the lunatic asylums.

Thought It Was the Monkey's.

A diamond necklace was possessed by Mme. Genfrey de St. Hilaire, the wife of the famous French naturalist. It was one of the chiefest of her "contentments," as Hindoo women aptly term their jewels. One day madame missed her necklace. There was a terrible turmoil in the house, and all the servants down to the foolish fat scullion were suspected, but in turn proved their innocence. At last it was remembered that M. de St. Hilaire had a pet monkey, and on a search being made in the "glory hole" of the quadrangle the precious bauble was discovered hidden away with a white satin shoe, several cigar ends, a pencil case and a decomposed apple. The renowned naturalist calmly observed that he had frequently seen the monkey playing with the necklace. "Why did you not take it from him?" indignantly asked his spouse. "I thought it belonged to him," replied M. de St. Hilaire. He evidently thought there was nothing unnatural in an ape possessing a diamond necklace as his personal property.

The Monasteries of Tibet.

Every Tibetan family is compelled to devote its firstborn male child to a monastic life. Soon after his birth the child is taken to a Buddhist monastery to be brought up and trained in priestly mysteries. At about the age of eight he joins one of the caravans which travel to Lassa. There he is attached to one of the local monasteries, where he remains as a novice until he is fifteen, learning to read the sacred books and perform the religious rites of his faith. The firstborn son, being thus sent into the church, as we should say in this country, the second becomes the head of the family and marries. Unlike some other semi-civilized races, these young Tibetans have the right of choosing their own wives. Nor can a Tibetan girl be married off by her parents without her own consent. The curious custom in regard to the eldest sons results of course, in nearly every Tibetan family acquiring the odor of sanctity, numbering a monk among its members.—London Telegraph.

Slow but Inexorable Justice.

In October, 1900, Pietro Giacconi and Marie Bonelli were tried at Rome on a charge of sextuple murder by poisoning committed thirty-one years before. In England Eugene Aram was hanged for the murder of Clarke fourteen years after the offense. A man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child in the eighteenth century no less than thirty-five years after the offense. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was executed in 1802 for a murder committed in 1782. Sherward was hanged at Norwich for the murder of his wife after a lapse of twenty years. But Sir Fitzjames Stephens recalls what is the most remarkable case of all. He prosecuted as counsel for the crown in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register sixty years before—that is in 1803. In this case the prisoner was acquitted.—London Standard.

Sweets Are Great Baby Savers.

The young, unspoiled human animal has a liking for sugar just as it has for sunlight, for fresh air, for play, for paddling in the surf and plunging in the stream or for food when it is hungry and sleep when it is tired and, subject of course, to reasonable limitations, as wholesome as any of the others. This is precisely what our specialists in children's diseases and broad minded family physicians have been urging for decades past, and it would be safe to say that, next to the banishment of starchy foods, gruels and paps from the nursery and the substitution of pure, sweet milk, few things have done more to increase the vigor and happiness of modern children and to cut down our disgraceful infant mortality than the free and intelligent use in the nursery of sweet fruits, preserves, sugar, taffy and butterscotch.—Woods Hutchinson in Success Magazine.

Date Cake With Coffee Icing.

One-half cup of butter creamed, one and one-third cup of brown sugar added and beat together, two eggs well beaten, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful nutmeg, one and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half cup sweet milk, one and three-quarter cups sifted flour, three-quarter cup dates, stones removed. Cut up fine and reserve a little of the flour to shake over them.

Icing.—Two tablespoonfuls strong, strained coffee and the same quantity of the white of an egg stirred together. Thicken with powdered sugar until stiff enough to spread. Allow the cake to cool before it is iced.—Boston Post.

Fair Exchange, Yet a Robbery.

While Gustave Dore was at Ischl and wandering about the mountains he became much interested in a country wedding and sketched it on the spot. He put the sketch into a book in the pocket of his paletot and went back to the hotel to dinner. After dinner he looked for the sketch. It was gone. Angry at the theft, the artist called the landlord and made complaint, but no trace of the book was found. From Ischl Dore went to Vienna, and there he found a letter and a parcel awaiting him. The letter, which was anonymous, read thus: "Sir, I stole your book at Ischl. The sketch was so charming that I could not resist the temptation of having it in my possession, and I knew very well you would never consent to sell it to me. But theft is neither my trade nor my habit, and I beg you to accept as a souvenir of my crime and my enthusiasm for your talent the walking stick which will reach you at the same time as this letter."

The cane was one with a massive gold head in which was set a gem of value.

The Clock's Annoying Habit.

Mrs. Benham had just seated herself to work at a bit of embroidery that required particular care and attention when there came a ring at the telephone. "I just know that's Mrs. Gummy," she said as she laid down her work and went to answer the call. "Whenever I am unusually busy and haven't any time to spare she rings me up and talks to me by the hour."

She was right. It was Mrs. Gummy, who was fully as talkative as ever. She began with a long story, and when fairly in the middle of it the clock on the wall of the room began to strike.

"Wait a moment," interposed Mrs. Benham. "I can't hear you until this noise stops."

"What made that noise?" asked Mrs. Gummy after it had ceased.

"It was only the clock," answered the patient Mrs. Benham. "You know it always strikes once or twice when we get to talking."

The conversation did not last long after that.—Youth's Companion.

A Curious Trap.

A curious labyrinth in which elephants are captured alive is to be seen near Ayuthia, formerly the capital of Siam. The labyrinth is formed of a double row of immense tree trunks set firmly in the ground, the space between them gradually narrowing. Where it begins, at the edge of the forest, the opening of the labyrinth is more than a mile wide, but as it approaches Ayuthia it becomes so narrow that the elephants cannot turn around. Suspecting no danger, the wild elephant enters the broad opening at the forest end, lured on by a tame elephant. The gradual narrowing of the boundaries is not observed until the elephant finds himself in close quarters. Having reached the end of the labyrinth, the tame elephant is allowed to pass through a gate, while men lying in wait slip shackles over the feet of the captives. The sport is a dangerous one, for the enraged elephants sometimes crush the hunters under their feet.

Bull Baiting.

Although bull baiting was a cruel pastime, it was also a fulfilling of the law, for formerly no butcher was allowed to offer for sale the flesh of any bull that had not been baited. The goading of the animal in a fury was supposed to have some influence on the flesh. In a similar belief the flesh of a hunted hare was thought to be superior in flavor to that of one that had been shot, and a present of "a hunted hare" was considered to be a special compliment. In the records of the corporation of Leicester, England, the following order appears: "At a common hall, held on Thursday before St. Simon and St. Jude, 1467, 'no butcher to kill a bull till baited.' " At Winchester it was ordered (reign of Henry VIII.) "that from henceforth there shall be no bul-stake set before any mayor's dore to bayte any bull, but onlie at the bull-ring within the saide cytie."

Gender of the Sword.

Among the many curious notions obtaining among the different races as to the gender of the sword may be noted the gender of the weapon. In the north of Europe it was either masculine, as in Britain, or neuter, as in Germany, while in the south it was uniformly feminine. Its force and cruelty appealed to the northern mind. Its grace and elegance attracted the warriors of the sunny south. It typified to the one strength, to the other dignity.

What He Saved.

MANY SPECIAL FLAGS.

Uncle Sam Has Some Which Are Very Seldom Seen.

COLORS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Not Until 1882 Did the Chief Executive of the Nation Have a Personal Banner, but Now He Has Three, the Naval, Army and Peace Flags.

As the United States grew and the government expanded many new departments were added, and with them many special flags have come into existence. Least often seen and yet most interesting of these twenty-five or thirty special flags is that of the president of the United States. He has a wealth of them—in fact, no less than three—but they are seldom seen in public. There are two each of these flags, one of bunting and one of silk. They are exactly alike, with this exception, but the one of silk is called the "president's colors."

The president of the United States had no personal flag until 1882. If he went aboard a ship his presence was denoted by the national flag hoisted at the main truck, and his presence in a garrison or post was denoted by the raising of the big garrison flag. These were not entirely distinctive as denoting the presence of the president, for these flags were hoisted on gala occasions when the president was not around. The lack of a distinguishing flag for him was felt by the navy also, and the secretary of the navy by general orders, Aug. 19, 1882, established a flag for the president of the United States. The general orders described the flag as of blue bunting with the coat of arms of the United States in the center. The flag was to be hoisted at the main of the vessel when the president was aboard and be carried at the bow of the launch on which he came aboard.

In the army there was no distinguishing flag for the president of the United States until just before the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. Colonel Theodore Bingham, who was then superintendent of public buildings and grounds, called the attention of President McKinley to this lack of a distinguishing flag for him and stated that he thought the commander in chief of the United States army and navy ought to have a distinguishing flag. President McKinley did not like the suggestion, but the secretary of war did, and a flag was made. It was designed by Frederick D. Owen and is a beautiful thing to look at. The official description of the flag is as follows:

"The president's flag is of scarlet bunting, thirteen feet fly and eight feet hoist. In each corner is a five pointed star of five inch radius to the tips. In the center of the scarlet field is a large fifth star, also of five points, two feet nine inches in radius to the tips. Inside of this star is a parallel star, separated from it by a band of white three inches wide. The inner star forms the blue field upon which is the coat of arms of the United States. On the scarlet field around the large star are forty-six small white stars, one for each state, equally scattered in the re-entering angles and all included within the circumference of an imaginary circle three feet and a quarter in radius. In the upper point over the angle is a constellation of thirteen stars, representing the original thirteen states of the American confederation."

Mr. Owen explained that in the olive leaves, its berries and the arrows is symbolized the original thirteen. It is also not a little singular that the official seal should bear in its motto exactly thirteen letters and that the general order which created the flag was also numbered thirteen. The magnificent silken colors of the president's flag are of scarlet, and the design is embroidered upon this so exquisitely that it is impossible to tell right from wrong side when looking at the flag. The colors on the flag are what is called "proper"—that is, natural—the eagle being brown and the olive branches green, with red berries. This flag is to be displayed only in time of war.

Yet another flag has the president. In 1902 the "peace" flag was adopted. This third flag differs in a good many respects from the other two. In the first place, the great seal of the United States is correctly depicted. On the other flags the design of the seal is seven red stripes and six white ones, which is correct, as the flag design was adopted by the Third congress, but when the great seal was adopted the designer, not knowing much about the flag, as the forefathers intended, and six red stripes. And that is the seal today. There was a long discussion whether the seal should not be changed to agree with the stripes on the flag, as the forefathers intended, but it was decided that as it had been adopted it should remain. This "peace" flag thus has the seal correctly depicted. The eagle is snow white, its feathers being outlined in deep black. There is a different arrangement of the stars and of the sunburst also. The sunburst is exactly circular in form, with the rays radiating from the group of stars. The colors are of silk with exactly the same design.—Washington Star.

Made It Very Clear.

"How do you suppose she manages to keep up appearances on her husband's income?"

"What is her husband's income?"

"I don't know; but, of course, it can't be as big as it would have to be if they could afford to live as they do."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

The Dialogue That Took Place After the Dances Ended.

A well known and popular Los Angeles physician upon the occasion of a recent visit to a professional friend at Fresno (the physician in charge of the state institution for the deaf and dumb) was invited to attend one of the periodical "hops" given the inmates. All the unfortunates and a goodly sprinkling of guests were present.

Before the function had progressed very far the Fresno physician approached his Los Angeles medical friend with, "Get busy, doctor!" The doctor got busy. Although tipping the scales at 210, he is an easy and graceful dancer and much enjoys the exercise. Approaching a young lady of singular sweetness and beauty, he indicated his desire to dance with her. She proved to be as witching with her feet as with her eyes, and our Los Angeles friend, in contempt of all convention, danced two or three numbers with her.

At the close of the last one a gentleman approached his charming partner and asked for the next dance. "I should be delighted to favor you, my friend," said she in a voice no less sweet than her face, "but I've promised to dance the next number with this dummy here!"

Each had taken the other for an inmate!—Los Angeles Times.

ANCIENT LONDON.

When Danger and Lanterns Were Abroad After Dark.

Less than 200 years ago the watchmen of London town, carrying horn lanterns and halberds, dressed in long coats and knee breeches, walked up and down the cobbled streets of the world's largest city chanting the following verse:

A light there, maids! Hang out your light And see your horns be clear and bright, That so your candle clear may shine, Continuing from six to nine, That honest men that walk along May see to pass safe without wrong.

It is beyond our comprehension and imagination in these days of flaming arc lamps and brilliantly lighted streets to picture the streets of London in the lawless age when only a candle with a cotton wick was hung out here and there on dark nights. It was an age of lanterns, of flambeaux and linkboys, when every one made his will and prepared for death when he ventured out at night.

It is so written that it was a common practice in that city for a company of a hundred or more to make nightly invasions upon houses of the wealthy to kill and rob, and it is recorded "that when night was come no man durst venture to walk in the streets."—Springfield Union.

A Rattlesnake Story.

In "Life and Sport on the Pacific Coast" Horace A. Vachell relates one of his narrow escapes from a friend's bullet. "My cousin and I had been camping and hunting for several days in a sort of paradise valley. One day during a long ride on horseback we had seen a great many rattlesnakes and killed a few, an exceptional experience. That night my cousin woke up and saw by the light of the moon a big rattler crawling across my chest. He lay for a moment fascinated, horror-struck, watching the sinuous curves of the reptile. Then he quietly reached for his six shooter, but he could not see the reptile's head, and he moved nearer, noiselessly, yet quickly, dreading some movement on my part that should precipitate the very thing he dreaded, and then he saw that it was not a snake at all—only the black and yellow stripes of my blanket, which gently rose and fell as I breathed. Had he fired—well, it might have been bad for me, for he confessed that his hand shook."

And They Didn't Exercise.

William M. Evans, who lived until he was nearly ninety, said he kept his health by never taking exercise. The celebrated Dr. William George Mead, who lived to the surprising age of 118 years, spent nearly all of his time in the open air and played a little golf. Dr. Mead used to drink two or three quarts of water every day, and perhaps there is a suggestion in that. Old Dubois, who lived in Canada for the better part of 119 years on the north shore of Lake Erie, never worked and never took exercise. He spent seventy-five years of his life fishing with hook and line and ate nothing but baked apples and milk and brown bread and unsalted butter. Perhaps you can live that long if you do nothing but fish and eat what old Dubois did. But take notice that these long livers never exercised.—New York Telegraph.

He Didn't Know It.

"What are you doing here?" "Waitin' on prosperity." "Why, prosperity passed this way two months ago!" "You don't say! That accounts for the twitchin' in my j'intis. I had a idee that somethin' or other had run over me."—Atlanta Constitution.

HOW TO CLEAN LACE.

Method of Restoring Fine Handmade Fabrics to Original State.

Lace which has become soiled may be restored to its original state and rendered equal to new if proper care and attention are bestowed upon it. Very fine handmade laces should never be cleansed by washing in the ordinary way. If they are only slightly soiled they could be very easily cleaned by rubbing powdered chalk or calcined magnesias well into them. This method of cleaning is credited to the late Mme. Modjeska. The lace should be neatly spread out upon a soft white cloth or fine white paper and thoroughly covered with the chalk or magnesias; then this should be covered by another cloth or paper of a similar nature, and the whole should be laid away for a few days under a heavy weight. At the expiration of the allotted time the lace should be taken from its wrappings and should receive a gentle but thorough shaking.

Another method is to take a quart or less of cornmeal. Put it into a bowl or pan; then dip and squeeze and work the cornmeal into the mesh of the lace without straining any of the threads. After this treatment and a good shaking it will look as fresh and attractive as new.

Very fine lace which has become quite soiled may be cleaned by washing it carefully in benzine. The lace should be put into a bowl and covered with the best and purest benzine that can be procured and be allowed to soak for a short time, occasionally receiving a gentle shaking, but it should never be rubbed with the hands. If necessary, when the benzine is poured off it should be replaced by a fresh supply and the lace allowed to soak again for a time. After it has become perfectly clean it should be pinned while still quite wet on a flannel covered board to dry. It is important that this should be done with great care. Plenty of small pins should be used for the purpose. Each point must be fastened down securely with due regard to the pattern of the lace so as to keep it even and correct.

If the lace dries before the task has been quite completed it should be moistened again with a sponge wrung out of benzine and then be exposed to the sun, where the fresh air may play upon it in order to dispel the disagreeable odor arising from the use of benzine.

TO REMOVE STAINS ON AUTOS

How to Clean Light Colored Leather Upholstery in the Machines.

Those who have purchased automobiles upholstered in light colored leather or because their wives or daughters liked the particular tint of the upholstery are often bothered by the apparent untidiness of the linings which is sure to result from exposure and use. To clean and remove stains from light colored leather, however, is not such a difficult matter, and the following mixture may be used with excellent results: Boil a pint of milk, allow it to cool and add one dram of hydrochloric acid and one dram of sulphuric acid.

After this has been well shaken a half dram of oil of lavender should be added and one pint of vinegar and the white of one egg beaten to a froth. The mixture should be kept in a tightly corked bottle. If this liquid is rubbed on the leather with a soft cloth the stains will be removed and the leather be much improved in appearance.

How to Exercise For Cold Feet.

Ankle exercises will improve the circulation of cold feet wonderfully. When sitting in a chair stretch the foot out, extending the toes to the extreme limit. Then rotate the foot up and down, sideways and around in a circle. Then stand, supporting yourself by a table or chair, and with one foot slightly raised, make it hang lifeless—in other words, devitalize it. With a circular movement of the lower part of the limb swing the foot around many times. Exercise both feet in the same way. When you have stopped the exercise you will feel a peculiar tingling sensation in the feet. This is the blood rushing back to them. Almost at once you will feel a comfortable sense of warmth that will be different from any feeling of warmth obtained by the use of hot water bags.

How to Make a Salmon Loaf.

Take equal quantities of boiled salmon and boiled rice. For a cupful of each use two hard boiled eggs, one tablespoonful of curry powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter, half a tablespoonful of cream; season with salt, white pepper and cayenne. Take all skin and bone from the fish and put in a saucepan with the butter. Add the rice, the whites of the eggs chopped fine and place over the fire until very hot, then take up on hot platter, molding it in shape of loaf with spoon. cover with yolks of eggs rubbed through a sieve and serve. The mixture should be stirred often while on the fire.

How to Root Oleanders.

The best way to root oleanders is to cut off a strong woody limb, cut a slot in the end and fill full of cotton. Put this in a bottle of water, wrap paper around it so the plant will not touch the bottle, put in a dark place and in one week the bottle will be full of little white roots. Take out and put into plenty of rich soil and it will go right on growing.

How to Make Soup Stock.

Save water from vegetables and some of the vegetables themselves for soup. Gravies added to these will make enough soup for four people, which may be strengthened by an egg by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars or any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Doctor's First Question

"How are your bowels?" This is generally the first question the doctor asks. He knows what a sluggish liver means. He knows what a long list of distressing complaints result from constipation. He knows that headaches, bilious attacks, indigestion, impure blood, and general debility are often promptly relieved by a good liver pill. We wish you would talk with your own doctor about this subject. Ask him at the same time if he approves of Ayer's Pills. Do as he says. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Pine Grove Hotel
W. H. Record was in Jackson last week. He represents the capitalists who are interested in heavy purchases of timber lands in the eastern part of the county, and who are also interested in the Amador Central Railroad, and the proposed extension of that road to the timber belt—an undertaking that must be put through in order to make available the timber in that section. While here the agreement for the sale of the Pine Grove hotel property was signed, and the instrument deposited with the Bank of Amador county pending the payment of forfeit to bind the bargain. It is expected that the work of extending the railroad to the timber line will be started within the next two months. The hotel property will be used as headquarters for employes engaged in construction work, and not for hotel purposes. It is also probable that the purchase is for speculative purposes also, as property around the Grove will advance in value as the result of the railroad.

Items of Interest from Towns Surrounding Jackson

A notable death at the county hospital this week was that of Marco Catalda, who died Wednesday. He was formerly from Mokelumne Hill and the body was taken there Thursday for interment. He was a native of Chili, aged 85 years. Catalda was a brother of the man who killed Qunn at Mokelumne Hill several years ago. Those who happened to be moon-gazing Thursday evening about 8:30 o'clock were treated to a most unusual and beautiful sight, that of a perfect lunar rainbow. The bow of brilliant coloring completely surrounded the moon in a circle about five or six times the diameter of the moon, and a secondary bow of less brilliant hues was also clearly discernable in a still larger circle. The colors of the primary bow were almost dazzling in color and as one spectator remarked, "almost scary" in appearance.—Prospect.
John Allen, son of Mr and Mrs H. Allen and a former school boy of San Andreas was here on a visit to his parents this week. John has just returned from a six month's cruise in Arctic waters, after whale, in the steam auxiliary barkentine Herman, of which he is second mate. The ship penetrated far into Arctic waters, going as far as Franklin bay, nearly half way to Atlantic waters, and came back well loaded. Mr Allen presented the Prospect with a fine specimen of whalebone taken from the mouth of a bow head whale.—Prospect.

Supervisor Wilson while in town this week was exhibiting a stalk of cotton on which was a fully developed bole of excellent fiber. The plant was raised and reached perfection at West Point, and is another illustration of the wonderful adaptability of the soil and climate of Calaveras.—Prospect.
J. Helms is drilling and prospecting the Cavagnaro and Gooding ranches on the north side of the river. This is known to be pretty good ground and there will probably be another boat built on that side of the river next summer.—Prospect.
Robert McMurray was agreeably surprised on Wednesday, November 9, 1910 it being his 82 birthday, when his brother and two sisters which are all that is left of a large family, and his seven children came to pay him a visit, it being the first time in several years that all were together. Two grand children and one great grand child were present. Among those present were: Jas. McMurray and wife of Ione; Mrs I. B. Gregory of Ione; Mrs Frank Dickey of Stockton; brother and sister of Mr Murray, the children, Wm. McMurray and wife, Mrs Ollie Merrill, Robert McMurray, all of Stockton; Mrs E. Merkel of Ione; Mrs Louella Streeter of Modesto; Mrs Alta Malloy and Grant McMurray of Wallace Mr and Mrs Shackelford of Stockton and Lawrence Malloy and Wilda Carr of Wallace. He was the recipient of ninety very pretty birthday cards and three very handsome cakes. The table was heavily laden with all the delicacies the ladies know how to prepare. Pictures were taken of the different groups. They all went home wishing their father and brother many more birthdays.—Prospect.

Doan's have done great work in this locality. J. J. Brennan, grocer, 1147 S. Center street, Stockton, Cal., says: "I always speak a good word for Doan's Kidney pills when I have the opportunity, as their worth was proven to me over two years ago. My kidneys and bladder were affected, and I had trouble with the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney pills promptly and thoroughly corrected these difficulties, and I have since had no trouble to speak of. In view of my experience, I feel justified in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills have no equal in curing kidney complaint." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Silence!
The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indecent. The thought of examination is so horrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse. ### To Start Business In Plymouth

Mrs Amber Meek has resigned her position as bookkeeper at Strohm's brewery, preparatory to moving to Plymouth. Mr Meek is in San Francisco purchasing the necessary supplies to start a ice cream and candy parlor in Plymouth. They expect to be able to start business there about the tenth of next month. The northern town is believed to be on eve of a boom, with the starting up of the Alpine mine, and the prospect that the Plymouth Consolidated is to be reopened at an early date.

Show Was Fair

Jackson was treated to a good entertainment last week when Charles Mack presented his three act comedy drama, "Come back to Erin."

The opera house was well filled on both Saturday and Sunday evening, and every one expressed their entire satisfaction of the play and its actors. The company went to Sutter Creek for here.

Church Bazaar A Worthy Cause

The ladies guild of St. Augustine's Episcopal church are straining every effort to complete arrangements for a bazaar which will be held in the Odd Fellow's building on the evening of December 15th next.

Fancy work of every description will be on sale, and a large variety of Christmas tree decorations will also be disposed of.

Fancy and useful articles will be offered at reasonable prices, suitable for Christmas presents, such as handkerchiefs, aprons, dolls and doll clothing. Mystery booth for men, women and children; fancy cooking, sweet girl, selling sweets; sandwiches, cake and coffee.

The church is badly in need of paint, and other repairs, and the proceeds of this affair will all be used in having the necessary work done.

St. Augustine's church under the rectorship of Rev. Shea has had a season of encouragement and real progress. The services are growingly attended, and what was once a scattered few in the faith, has since his installation here become a solidly established mission.

Cheapest accident insurance—Dr Thomas' Eclectic Oil. Stops the pain and heals the wound. All druggists sell it.

Turkey Shooting.

Last Sunday the marksmen of this city were given an opportunity to get cheap turkeys. In many cases, however, the fowls became very expensive before the crack shots could claim their prizes. Forty-three turkeys were taken by various persons who paid 10 cents per shot for the prizes. One of the riflemen spent more than twenty dollars and received but four turkeys for his outlay and efforts. Another man secured six turkeys at an expense of less than five dollars. Ray Ball of Shenandoah valley owned turkeys and conducted the match. The shooting was held in therear of the Union livery stable.

On thanksgiving day another contest was held, and a large variety of fowls were offered as prizes. Every kind of a firearm from the revolver up were used in the shooting.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

Fix Up Business Place

A cement floor is being laid in the macaroni factory operated by Giovannoni brothers, No. 79 Main street. The large granite crusher has been given an extra grinding, and polishing at the Particelli brothers stone-cutting plant, and when the place is again put in operation, it will have such improvements that will rank it with a modern plant.

For buggies, farming implements, etc., go to McCall & McCall, Stockton.

Street Repaired

Main street is receiving a new road bed in the northern section of the town, which is greatly needed. Crushed rock is being filled in at the low places, and the center of the street is given a rolling pitch which will readily shed the water and leave a good dry street during the bad weather season.

Next Deputy Sheriff

It is understood that Clarence Bradshaw of Pine Grove will most likely to be the deputy sheriff under the coming administration. It is considered a good selection. Mr Bradshaw has been accustomed to outdoor work, and is courageous in the prosecution of duty, and is moreover well qualified by education for the deputyship.

WRITER TAKES ANOTHER TRIP

Ledger's Correspondent Visits Sacramento and Folsom

Nov. 20—Your correspondent, like a migratory bird, has been to several places in the last three months, all of them possessing interesting features—too much to take up in one letter.

I was in Sacramento for four weeks. Well, everybody knows that Sacramento is on the map, but few outside the city realize the building boom that is taking place there. Real estate dealers are as busy as bees, buying tracts on the outside of the city and cutting them up into building lots. Street work has been carried on extensively, too, and the boom altogether, has advanced prices of realty amazingly. It is certainly inflated action that must reach a maximum. Then the slump, and the small purchasers loose. Tell a Sacramentoian that, he'll say, "How can it?" Water will reach its level, so will the conditions of a city. There is another tendency to boom it, the influx of easterners who are swarming westward. They hear of California as the balmy sunny land where everything can be raised plentifully but $20 pieces; they must be coined, and if I am a judge, it is the real estate men that are doing the coining, not by dies as the government does, but by speculative genius, they all seem to possess.

I had the pleasure, while in Sacramento of seeing the world's famous aviator, Chas. K. Hamilton fly. He made three ascents and flew around the fair grounds three times, alighting each time with the ease of a bird. I was told he made a poor effort during fair week, but he retrieved it afterward, that's certain.

I visited Folsom a few days ago, and went out to see dredger No. 8—the largest in the world. It is a ponderous piece of wood and iron combined, turned into actual work by the genius of man. It has been under construction for nearly two years. There are 40 or 50 men constructing it, moulding it into shape. Nearly all the iron work is made at the company's shops at Natoma with the exception of a few pieces of heavy castings, which are made in the east. The machine shop at Natoma, owned by the company, is continually turning out new material that is worn away by the ponderous action of the machine, for this one would destroy 160 acres of land in a single year—hence the wear.

I visited the Folsom prison on Sunday last, but the warden's edict had struck Sunday out on his map for curious visitors—curious, I say, for every one knows it is curiosity to see the inside of a prison without having the formality of a superior judge to send you there with a permit to stay from one to 20 years, or even a life time, at the generous hospitality of the taxpayers of the state of California.

Well, I approached the outer guard that sits in an easy chair before a small iron gate that was wide open. A Winchester rifle was leaning against the granite wall, and spoke in silent volumes for itself. The guard was an affable, good natured gentleman, suave in manners, and obliging in character. The gun said in pantomime, "Look out for the man, he may turn me into a messenger of death to uphold the law that man holds as his prerogative." As I looked at the man and conversed freely with him, a reflective thought passed like a flash through my mind—these men are employed by the commonwealth of the state, to guard the prisoners. Suppose a man makes a leap for liberty, it is natural, bang! goes the Winchester, and down he goes; this is law, this is order. He kills the man because of duty. Now, my reading friends, there is cause for the condition that makes so many convicts. They are not criminals by nature, but by circumstances. Senator Perkins said in a lecture twenty years ago, "Hunger, squalor, and want, know no law. The world's greatest philanthropists and the political economist are striving to bring about a betterment of economic conditions in order to aid the mass of human slaves that are really slaves to their own wants."

After I had been there for a half hour the guard was relieved. He took the seat, the other took the gun in his hand and placed it against the wall to suit him. He was altogether a different sort of a man from the other, florid in complexion, lymphatic in temperament. There was a determined look in his eye that gave you the impression that he was there for what was in it. He gave you to understand that he was there to shoot at a man with the same deliberation that he would shoot at a target. Another man in livery came out and engaged in conversation. He appeared from both action and word to be more of a humanitarian than the other. He said, "Many a man in those prison walls ought not to be there. One man in particular is in there for 20 years. He was a married man, and an agent for pianos. A woman's treachery to get one of those pianos for nothing placed him behind the prison bars. It was the work of an adventure, using her 14 year old girl as the bait to entrap him. This I had straight from the sheriff of the county that brought him here. It was a deliberate connivance on the part of the mother to force the agent to give her the piano. Then her scheme failed, she turned to revenge, and landed the man in the penitentiary by a trumped up charge of the woman. "He is a smart fellow," he continued, "he has constructed the model of a marine engine that experts say, is the best in existence. Well it is a shame for there is genius housed in both penitentiaries that would surprise you. A man in San Quentin has invented a machine to detect fraudulent bank bills. It is infallible, and certain to be used by all the banks."

The conversation then turned upon the marksmanship of guards. "When I was at San Quentin five years ago," said the guard at the gate, "there was a demand for guards—men who were expert shots. The test to get a position was to be made at a target. It was to hinge principally upon marksmanship. Two darkeys came up and attempted to shoot. One was driving the center out of the target in a way that made the rest of us look wild, but the tall men were doing their duty, they were marking him out every time. Finally the darkey caught on, he pulled out $300 in $20 pieces and threw them on the ground with a vim, at the same time saying, "I'll jist bet yous gemmens dat 15 twenty dollar pieces dat I kin beat any man shootin in de two prisons." "Did you pick it up said the other?" "Not by a d—d sight, for we knew he could do it, but we didn't want a d—nigger round us." Such then is only race prejudice for the darkey was really master.

Dog Poisoner Busy.

The dog poisoner has again been doing a rushing business, and as a result, Jackson is minus about five or six canines. Two of the dogs were found dead in the vicinity of the court house, and others in the outskirts of the city. The yelping dogs started their music about 12 o'clock, and continued several hours.

It is a pity that the inhuman son of sin who commits these rash acts cannot be detected and supplied with a fair amount of justice. A poisoned dog becomes vicious in many cases, and thereby endangers the general public.

Feel languid, weak, run-down? Headache? Stomach "off"?—Just a plain case of lazy liver. Burdock blood bitters tones liver and stomach, promotes digestion, purifies the blood.

Ellis-Whitaker Nuptials

The Ledger was in error last week when it stated that Miss Martha Ellis of Stony Creek and Low G. Whitaker of Oakland were united in marriage by the Hon. Judge Fred V. Wood.

The wedding was performed by Father Greely in St. Patrick's church. Miss Hattie Miller acted in the capacity of bridesmaid, while John Ellis, a brother of the bride was best man.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr and Mrs Joseph Ellis of Stony Creek. She possesses a charming disposition, and enjoys the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends in this county who will wish her a happy future in her chosen path. The groom is the eldest son of Mr and Mrs J. Whitaker, and is a native of Ione.

After the ceremony, the party returned to the Ellis home, where a sumptuous and elaborate wedding dinner awaited them. Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the newly weds. Mr and Mrs Whitaker will make their future home in Oakland.

Not Sorry For Blunder

"If my friends hadn't blundered in thinking I was doomed victim of consumption, I might not be alive now," writes D. T. Sanderson, of Harrodsburg, Ky., "but for years they saw every attempt to cure a lung-racking cough fail. At last I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. The effect was wonderful. It soon stopped the cough and I am now in better health than I have been for years. This wonderful life-saver is an unrivaled remedy for coughs, colds, influenza, asthma, croup, hemorrhages, whooping cough or weak lungs, 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Spagnoli's drug store."

Taken Suddenly Ill.

The sudden illness of his father, Dr. D. S. Mason of Suisun, caused Harvey Mason of this city to make a hurried trip to the home of his parents last week. Dr. Mason was stricken on the street, and was taken to his home in an express wagon, which happened by. A communication was sent to his sons, David and Harvey Mason, who are proprietors of the National hotel, and in response to the message, Harvey hastened to his father's bedside. The aged man is reported to be out of danger, and Harvey returned to Jackson this week.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's cough remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.
